Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

Claims 70-79 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a) as being anticipated by (US 5,870,718) Spector.

Claim 70. Spector discloses, A method comprising: generating, by a computer, a certificate identifier linked to an account identifier that is associated with a financial account, said certificate identifier being different from said account identifier (col. 4, lines 14-21); producing a gift certificate including thereon said certificate identifier (Fig. 2 (CS) —shows this element), said gift certificate not including said account identifier (Fig. 2 (CS) —shows this element); and distributing said gift certificate to an owner of said financial account (col. 2, lines 20-28).

Art Unit: 3696

Claim 71. Spector discloses, The method of claim 70 wherein the financial account identifier cannot be discerned from the gift certificate identifier by a third party (col. 4, 14-23).

Claim 72. Spector does not expressly disclose, The method of claim 70, further including the steps of: receiving an indication of a gift certificate redemption; and updating stored account data to reflect the redemption. However, these steps would be inherent to receive some type of indication that the gift certificate has been redeemed and the stored account data would automatically be updated to reflect the amount of the redemption.

Claim 73. Spector discloses, A method comprising: generating, by a computer, a certificate identifier corresponding linked to an account identifier that is associated with a financial account, said certificate identifier being different from said account identifier (col. 4, lines 14-21); producing a gift certificate including thereon said certificate identifier (Fig. 2 (CS) —shows this element), said gift certificate not including said account identifier (Fig. 2 (CS) —shows this element), said gift certificate not including said account identifier; and distributing said gift certificate to a recipient (col. 2, lines 20-28 and (col. 3, lines 44-48).

Claim 74. Spector discloses, The method of claim 73 wherein the financial account identifier cannot be discerned from the gift certificate identifier by a third party (col. 4,

Claim 75. Spector did not expressly disclose, The method of claim 73, further including the steps of: receiving an indication of a gift certificate redemption; and updating stored account data to reflect the redemption. However, these steps would be inherent to receive some type of indication that the gift certificate has been redeemed and the stored account data would automatically be updated to reflect the amount of the redemption.

Claim 76. Spector discloses, A system comprising: computer (col. 3, lines 49-53) means for generating a certificate identifier linked to an account identifier that is associated with a financial account, said certificate identifier being different from said account identifier (col. 4, lines 14-21); means for producing a gift certificate including thereon said certificate identifier (Fig. 2 (CS)- shows this element), said gift certificate not including said account identifier (Fig. 2 (CS)- shows this element), and means for distributing said gift certificate to an owner of said financial account (col. 2, lines 20-28).

Claim 77. Spector discloses, means for distributing said gift certificate to a recipient (col. 3, lines 44-48). This independent claim is rejected for the similar rationale as given above for claim 73.

Claim 78. This independent claim is rejected for the similar rationale as given above for claims 70 and 76.

Claim 79. This independent claim is rejected for the similar rationale as given above for claims 73 and 77.

Response to Arguments

Applicants' arguments filed 10/10/08 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Issue no. 1: Applicants' argue: There is absolutely no basis for the Examiner's assertion that Spector discloses "generating a certificate identifier linked to an account identifier that is associated with a financial account, said certificate identifier being different from said account identifier as required by each of the independent claims 70, 73, and 76-79 has been considered but is not persuasive. Response: The Examiner disagrees with Applicants' that Spector does not disclose "generating a certificate identifier linked to an account identifier that is associated with a financial account, said certificate identifier being different from said account identifier because (1) the claim limitation recites "generating, by a computer, a certificate identifier linked to an account identifier that is associated with a financial account, said certificate identifier being different from said account identifier" in claims 70 and 73; claims 76 and 77 recite "computer means for generating a certificate identifier linked to an account identifier that is associated with a financial account, said certificate identifier being different from said account identifier"; and claims 78 and 79 recites "generating a certificate identifier linked to an account identifier that is associated with a financial account, said certificate identifier being different from said account identifier"; (2) the Specification on page 6, line 10 and page 10, line 3 recites "corresponding" and "a certificate identifier linked to an account identifier" is not found in Applicants' Specification; and (3) it is interpreted that the gift certificate has data printed on the certificate with a certificate identifier on it as shown in Fig. 2 and the gift certificate paid for by a credit card links the gift certificate identifier to an account identifier because a credit card is issued by a bank or financial institution. Therefore, the certificate identifier is different from the account identifier.

In order to move the application forward, Applicants' must be willing to amend the claims. ("[T]he name of the game is the claim"). See In re Hiniker Co., 150 F.3d 1362, 1369, 47 USPQ2d 1523, 1529 (Fed. Cir. 1998).

"However, this court has consistently taken the tack that claims yet unpatented are to be given the broadest reasonable interpretation consistent with the specification during the examination of a patent application since the applicant may then amend his claims, the thought being to reduce the possibility that, after the patent is granted, the claims may be interpreted as giving broader coverage than is justified." In re Prater, 162 USPQ 541 (CCPA 1969).

"Claims in a pending application should be given their broadest possible interpretation". In re Pearson, 181 USPQ 641 (CCPA 1974).

"An essential purpose of patent examination is to fashion claims that are precise, clear, correct, and unambiguous. Only in this way can uncertainties of claim scope be removed ...". In re Zletz 13 USPQ2d 1320 (Fed. Cir. 1989).

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within

Art Unit: 3696

TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
